eFreight – go paperless with Lufthansa Cargo

eFreight – a brief guide

eFreight replaces the old paper documents that have been in use in the air cargo industry for decades, with standardized electronic messages and regulated data exchange.

Benefits of eFreight

- Process efficiency increased without additional work
- Reduced administrative burden due to fewer documents
- Timesaving in document handling because of quicker/easier goods acceptance
- Improved quality through onetime shipment data capturing
- Decrease in billing discrepancies because of high data quality and completeness
- Contribution to the environmental protection with reduced paper effort

eFreight components

Electronic freight documents

eAWB

The electronic airway bill (eAWB) being an electronic message, constitutes the legal basis for the transport agreement between freight forwarder and airline and is the first major digitized document.

eCSD

The IATA standard electronic consignment security declaration (eCSD) is the digital equivalent to the regular paper-security and screening information of shipments.

eHM

The electronic house manifest (eHM) replaces paper house manifest or consol manifest with electronic messages (FHL or XFZB).

eDGD

The electronic dangerous goods declaration (eDGD) is a new, digital standard for the management of dangerous goods data throughout the supply chain.

Process acceleration

PreCheck

PreCheck is the preceded, electronic document processing of AWB and HAWB data belonging to an eAWB shipment through Lufthansa Cargo, resulting in immediate response about their content quality.

QDO

Quick drop-off (QDO)

This service enables you to create shipments lists with export shipments for a faster drop-off (at selected stations).

QPU

Quick pick-up (QPU)

This service enables you to create shipments lists with import shipments for a faster pick-up (at selected stations).

SST

Self-service terminals (SST)

With the new self-service terminals Lufthansa Cargo offers freight deliverers a quick check-in to skip the counter process.
